Van Kuren Store and Residence At Kinnickinnick Destroyed In Blaze.

The general store and residence of Van Kuren and Co., Kinnickinnick, were destroyed late Saturday night by fire from which a four-month-old son of Clarence Van Kuren had two thrilling escapes.

The fire, which caused a loss of $10,000, started at 11 p. m. Saturday from the backfire of an electric lighting plant in the rear of the store. The blaze had made good headway before it was discovered.

The Kingston pumper, a chemical truck of the Chillicothe fire department and the Kinnickinnick bucket brigade fought the fire which spread to the Van Kuren dwelling.

BABE ESCAPES TWICE
The young son of Clarence Van Kuren was carried from the burning residence to the home of R. F. Evans. Handicapped by a lack of water, the volunteer firemen became alarmed when it appeared that the Evans house would be the next structure in flames.

A rush was made to remove the furnishings of the Evans home and in the excitement Leslie Brown, a neighbor's son, picked up a bundle of bed clothing, which he pushed out a window, rolled over a porch roof and dropped to the ground. Brown lost his footing and followed the bundle to ground. He was uninjured.

A short time later movement within the bed clothing resulted in the discovery there of the four-month-old boy, unharmed.

Efforts to save the Evans house were successful.

Farm Relief Interest Second to Fried Chicken

Can Discern Date of Birth Of Luckless Fowl Instantly

JOB had his troubles, but he would have considered himself a man without worries if he had known Charles Linza McNary, senior Senator from Oregon. Farm relief is the bane of McNary's hitherto untroubled existence.

In the last three years he has coined and considered enough farm relief plans, which, if placed end to end, would stretch twice around the globe and if snatched together would fill the pension office, known as Melg's Barn. What he does not know about farm relief is not worth knowing.

But all this has interfered with McNary's real life work. It is betraying no confidence to say that McNary is the leading exponent of fried chicken in Maryland in the Senate. If not the United States and contiguous countries. The apex of his ambition is to find the perfect fried chicken. WIFE OF MINISTER SUFFERS RELAPSE

Social Warfare Is Reopened By Mrs. Longworth

Declines To Attend Dinner At Which Mrs. Gann Is Given Preference.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The capital's social warfare over the seating precedence at former dinners did not end with solemn declaration of the diplomatic corps that Mrs. "Dolly" Gann, half-sister of Vice President Curtis, was entitled to rank as the "second lady" on such occasions.

Those who thought it did just don't know their Washington.

The buzzing around the tea tables and in the drawing rooms began anew today and concerned a dinner given by the Eugene Meyers, who have long been prominent in capital society.

To this dinner, so the story goes, were invited the Ganns and the speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who was Alice Roosevelt. Upon learning that Mrs. Gann was to be present and seated as the ranking lady, Mrs. Longworth is said to have sent her regrets at the last moment. These regrets, it is said, were followed by Mrs. Gann's regrets when she was apprised that Mrs. Longworth had declined, so neither of them attended.

The town is buzzing about it, but none of the principals would discuss it today.

Mrs. Meyer referred inquiries to Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth.

Mrs. Gann referred inquiries to Mrs. Longworth.

Mrs. Longworth told reporters she was "out of town."

And there you are.

YOUNG HUGHES OFFERED HIGH U. S. POSITION

Son of Former Secretary of State Is Appointed Solicitor General.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The new solicitor general of the United States is to be Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., son of the former secretary of state.

President Hoover will send the nomination to the senate today.

The solicitor generalship, which is regarded as the premier governmental law post with the exception of the attorney generalship, has been vacant for two months. The present attorney general, William D. Mitchell, occupied the post before his promotion to the cabinet.

Young Hughes is a graduate of Brown and Harvard law schools and has been practicing in New York for several years.

SELECTION SURPRISE

His appointment came as a distinct surprise to political Washington, for his name has not figured in the speculation. Nearly every state in the Union had a candidate for the solicitorship. At one time there were more than two score recommendations on President Hoover's desk.

The outstanding candidates for the post have been George H. Bond of Syracuse, N. Y.; John G. Buchanan of Pittsburgh, and Charles I. Dawson, of Louisville.

As solicitor general, young Hughes will be the government's principal pleader before the United States supreme court, upon which his father sat as associate justice until 1916.

In his New York practice, Hughes has been associated with his father's firm of Hughes, Rounds, Schurman and Dwight.

He is said to have had the backing of all the Republican leaders of New York for the appointment.

A similar fate overtook Charles Ohe, 69, at Cincinnati.

Ernest Hubacker, 35, Wayne-co farmer, was killed when his car was struck by a train at Burton City in that county.

INCREASE IS SHOWN BY LIVESTOCK CO-OP

NAVAL ISSUE IS POSTPONED

Open Discussion of Limitation Is Put Off Until Fall By League.

GENEVA, May 6.—Open discussion of the naval limitation proposals put forward here by Hugh Gibson in behalf of the United States was today postponed until Autumn by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission.

In the meantime the naval situation will be studied by the governments of the big naval powers. "The American proposals do not constitute a rigid plan to be accepted or rejected, but are merely suggestions," Mr. Gibson told the commission. "The theory of any naval plan that would be simple in its application is difficult. Although the United States suggests ascertaining the value of ships, their tonnage, calibre of the guns and their age, it appears that there are other factors that might be considered."

The motion to put off debate upon the American naval plan was made by M. Sato, of Japan and was seconded by Lord Gushenden, of England, and Count Masigili, of France.

Mr. Gibson, who is the United States ambassador to Belgium as well as delegate to the commission meeting, and Maxim Litvinoff, of Soviet Russia, both of whom represent countries not members of the league, consented to the delay.

The meeting of the commission drew towards its close in an atmosphere of amity and optimism. France made another concession to the United States regarding land armaments when Count Masigili withdrew the proposal for international control of budgets and land effective.

FIND MANGLED BODY OF BABE

Seek Murderers of Child Found Floating In Ohio River At Pomeroy.

POMEROY, O., May 6.—The horribly-mangled body of a two-month-old baby girl, which was found in a gunny sack floating in the Ohio river at Racine, near here yesterday, lay in a morgue today as county authorities began a search for perpetrators of the crime.

Strips, apparently torn from a window blind, were wrapped tightly around the child's neck.

According to indications, the body had been placed in the sack and afterwards beaten with a heavy club.

One side of the infant's skull was crushed flat and part of the brain was hanging from the wound.

The back was like a piece of pulp showing plainly that the little girl had been severely maltreated.

It was described by authorities as one of the most gruesome finds ever taken from the Ohio river.

Those officials said the child was about two months old and had blonde hair. It had been in the river two or three days. The body was nude, leaving no marks of identification.

The only clue police have is the gunny sack, which may be traced to the owner.

Unwinding of Red Tape to Jail Harry Sinclair, Oil Magnate, Is Underway

Millionaire To Be Treated Same As Any Other Prisoner, Is Claimed.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The red tape necessary to induct Harry F. Sinclair into prison began to unwind rapidly today.

Just when the doors of the jail house will clang behind the multi-millionaire oil magnate and sportsman has not been fixed. It may be late today, more probably tomorrow, and certainly not later than Wednesday.

Sinclair's attorneys have notified district officials they will surrender their famous prisoner whenever he is wanted. "No deputies with warrants will have to search for him. He will come to Washington to give himself up, and with as good grace as is possible under the circumstances begin his 90-day stretch for refusing to answer questions propounded to him by the senate in its Teapot Dome oil investigation."

The procedure is simple, if somewhat deliberate. In the mail of District Attorney Leo Rover this morning was the mandate from the United States supreme court, containing notice of the failure of Sinclair's appeal and containing instructions that the 90-day sentence is to be carried out. Rover takes this mandate before Justice Hitz in the district supreme court and asks for a commitment order. Upon issuance of this order, it is turned over to U. S. Marshal Edgar Snyder for service. That is all there is to it.

JAIL IS FAVORED

It seemed fairly certain today that the place of commitment will be the District of Columbia jail, located at 200 Nineteenth street, southeast, instead of the more distant work farm at Occoquan, Va., some 20 miles from the capital.

The city jail is more desirable than the work farm in some respects, and less desirable in others. Physically able prisoners sent to the farm are put to work—hard manual labor. There are cows to be milked, fields to be plowed, stables to be cleaned, and worse than all else, backs to be

RADIO FANS WILL HEAR TED TONIGHT

Ted Lewis and his band, Vienne Segal and Dolores Costello will be featured stars of the radio-cast from Hollywood that the V-tophone Jubilee Hour will present over stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System Monday night at 9:30.

This will be the third time that stars from Hollywood have been heard in this hour. Ted Lewis' appearance on the program will be of special interest of Circleville listeners.

Stations in the chain are: WOR, Newark, N. J.; WCAU, Philadelphia; WADC, Akron; WRBC, Cincinnati; WGHP, Detroit; WMAQ, Chicago; KMOX, St. Louis, and WHK, Cleveland.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

Mrs. A. W. Holman, who has been confined in Mt. Carmel hospital Columbus for the past five weeks from injuries received in an automobile accident, returned home Sunday. She returned to Circleville in the machine with Dr. Holman and daughter Miss Ruth Holman. Although Mrs. Holman has not completely recovered, she is greatly improved.

made in the factory on the farm. Brick-making is no fun. However, prisoners at the work farm are further removed from the spotlight of publicity.

In the city jail, the prisoners work, but it is work of lighter variety. There is the prison laundry, the office, and the cells and corridors to be kept clean, but aside from these tasks there isn't much labor.

District authorities insisted today that Sinclair would be sent to the institution his health seemed to call for. They said upon being received he would be put through the usual routine.

They insisted too, that the oil magnate is to be treated "just like any other prisoner." All of Sinclair's money, they declared, with great positiveness, will be used to purchase for him anything outside the usual rough prison fare, nor any luxuries to which he has been accustomed.

BUSSEY GAINS HIS FREEDOM

Collegian, Held As Material Witness In Torch Murder, Is Released.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 6.—Eugene Bussey, the 24-year-old Baltimore collegian, who admitted taking part in "necking parties" with Dorothy Peacock, slain bride of Earle Peacock who confessed her murder, today was released from jail where he had been held as a material witness.

A temporary writ of habeas corpus was signed by Justice William F. Blakely and was confirmed by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins. The writ held Bussey's arrest was illegal inasmuch as it was not ordered by the prosecutor nor by defense counsel.

Justice Tompkins was informed that an agreement had been reached between David Gorinkley, counsel for Bussey, and Sydney Syme, attorney for Peacock, in which Bussey would be produced within 24 hours whenever his presence would be required as a possible defense witness. The court then released Bussey.

Young Bussey, boyhood chum of Peacock, came here to save his friend by "telling all." But following an interview with the district attorney, Bussey announced that after learning of the details of the torch murder by Peacock, he had lost much of his sympathy for him.

The formal indictment of Peacock for the strangling and burning the body of his wife was expected today or tomorrow as the May grand jury was sworn in today.

WIDOW, DAUGHTER SHARE IN ESTATE

The widow and daughter are the sole beneficiaries under the will of the late Daniel Stein, of Walnut-twp, which has been filed in the Pickaway-co probate court. The widow, Sophia K. Stein, who has been named executrix of the will, is bequeathed the household goods and furniture. The remainder of the personal property is divided between her and the daughter, Myrtle, as is also one-half interest in 80 acres of land in Walnut-twp, valued at $8,000.

DRY OFFICIALS AND GOVERNOR GO IN HUDDLE

State Prohibition Commissioner Confers With Cooper In Secrecy.

Secrecy and silence predominated in Ohio's prohibition circles today.

All was quiet along the Lancaster "battleground," where it is charged, Ed Little, Dayton, and John O. Cole, Steubenville, suspended dry agents, used high school girls as decoys in obtaining evidence against alleged liquor law violators.

It was the same at Lorain, where, allegations state, Cole led a raiding party on the personage of Rev. George I. Cooper's Union Rescue Mission.

But things were somewhat different in Columbus. There was not only silence, but secrecy.

AT COOPER'S HOME
It is known that Gov. Meyer, Y. Cooper, and several members of his cabinet, including State Prohibition Commissioner R. R. Beetham, are in a "huddle" at the chief executive's mansion at Columbus. The officials slipped quietly from their state-house offices this morning and congregated at the governor's home.

R. R. Beetham, when accounted by reporters, replied that he was not familiar enough with the situation as yet, to make any comment on the situations at Lancaster and Lorain.

He has ordered Prosecutor Russell Cunningham and several other Lancaster Ohio officials to appear before him tomorrow afternoon, in connection with the charges that high school girls were used as liquor decoys and that Little and Cole gave the girls intoxicants to drink.

TAKE OFFENSIVE
In taking this step, it is reported, the state prohibition department, which had remained on the defensive while Beetham was absent from Columbus, is taking the offensive, and the "attitude" that the liquor laws had been properly enforced at Lancaster the "unpleasant situation" would not have occurred.

An expense account filed with the state auditor's office today showed that Fred E. Gray, another state prohibition agent, had expended $248 in his investigations or liquor condition during April at Ironton. Included in this item was $49 for "gambling and purchase of liquor." The budget was approved by State Commissioner Beetham and certified by the auditor of state. The account attracted a little attention because of the fact that it was the first time in several months that an expense account of a state dry agent had included a "gambling" item.

Eight Ohioans Are Among the Victims of Accidents Over Week-end.

Auto accidents, which claimed more than 50 lives in other states, over the week-end, resulted in the deaths of at least eight Ohioans, according to a check-up made by International News Services today.

Three persons were killed when a train struck their auto at an Ashland-co crossing Saturday night. They are Grover C. Lockhart, 45, a Richland-co farmer, his wife, Belle, 45, and their seven-year-old daughter, Dora.

Keith Wiedel, 7, was killed when he was struck by an auto near Castalia, Erie-co.

A similar fate overtook Charles Ohe, 69, at Cincinnati.

Ernest Hubacker, 35, Wayne-co farmer, was killed when his car was struck by a train at Burton City in that county.

Herbert Hartwig, 29, was killed at Sandusky when the motorcycle he was riding struck an automobile.

Allen Collins, 26, met instant death last night when he lost control of his auto and it plunged into a tree near Ironton.

INCREASE IS SHOWN BY LIVESTOCK CO-OP

The report of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association for the month of April shows that the association did a business valued at $117,688.92. The shipments representing April's business included 2,106 hogs; 573 head of cattle; 133 veal calves and 164 head of sheep. Fifty-eight floors were sold direct to the killers.

This past month's business shows a nice increase over the same months during the past two years. The association handled 63 floors of livestock in April. In April, 1927, the association handled 38 floors; in April 1928, 42 floors, making a gain of 50 per cent in the movement of livestock this past month over April of last year.

NAVAL ISSUE IS POSTPONED

Open Discussion of Limitation Is Put Off Until Fall By League.

GENEVA, May 6.—Open discussion of the naval limitation proposals put forward here by Hugh Gibson in behalf of the United States was today postponed until Autumn by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission.

In the meantime the naval situation will be studied by the governments of the big naval powers. "The American proposals do not constitute a rigid plan to be accepted or rejected, but are merely suggestions," Mr. Gibson told the commission. "The theory of any naval plan that would be simple in its application is difficult. Although the United States suggests ascertaining the value of ships, their tonnage, calibre of the guns and their age, it appears that there are other factors that might be considered."

The motion to put off debate upon the American naval plan was made by M. Sato, of Japan and was seconded by Lord Gushendun, of England, and Count Mas-sigli, of France.

Mr. Gibson, who is the United States ambassador to Belgium as well as delegate to the commission meeting, and Maxim Litvinoff, of Soviet Russia, both of whom represent countries not members of the league, consented to the delay. The meeting of the commission drew towards its close in an atmosphere of amity and optimism. France made another concession to the United States regarding land armaments when Count Mas-sigli withdrew the proposal for international control of budgets and land effective.

FIND MANGLED BODY OF BABE

Seek Murderers of Child Found Floating In Ohio River At Pomeroy.

POMEROY, O., May 6.—The horribly-mangled body of a two-month-old baby girl, which was found in a gunny sack floating in the Ohio river at Racine, near here yesterday, lay in a morgue today as county authorities began a search for perpetrators of the crime.

Strips, apparently torn from a window blind, were wrapped tightly around the child's neck.

According to indications, the body had been placed in the sack, and afterwards beaten with a heavy club.

One side of the infant's skull was crushed flat, and part of the brains were hanging from the wound.

The back was like a piece of pulp, showing plainly that the little girl had been severely maltreated.

It was described by authorities as one of the most gruesome finds ever taken from the Ohio river.

Those officials said the child was about two months old, and had blonde hair. It had been in the river two or three days. The body was nude, leaving no marks of identification.

The only clew police have is the gunny sack, which may be traced to the owner.

Unwinding of Red Tape to Jail Harry Sinclair, Oil Magnate, Is Underway

Millionaire To Be Treated Same As Any Other Prisoner, Is Claim.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The red tape necessary to indict Harry F. Sinclair into prison began to unwind rapidly today.

Just when the doors of the jail house will clang behind the multi-millionaire oil magnate and sportsman has not been fixed. It may be late today, more probably tomorrow, and certainly not later than Wednesday.

Sinclair's attorneys have notified district officials they will surrender their famous prisoner whenever he is wanted. No deputies with warrants will have to search for him. He will come to Washington to give himself up, and with as good grace as is possible under the circumstances begin his 90-day stretch for refusing to answer questions propounded to him by the senate in its Teapot Dome oil investigation.

The procedure is simple, if somewhat deliberate. In the mail of District Attorney Leo Rover this morning was the mandate from the United States supreme court, containing notice of the failure of Sinclair's appeal and containing instructions that the 90-day sentence is to be carried out. Rover takes this mandate before Justice Hitz in the district supreme court and asks for a commitment order. Upon issuance of this order, it is turned over to U. S. Marshal Edgar Snyder for service. That is all there is to it.

JAIL IS FAVORED

It seemed fairly certain today that the place of commitment will be the District of Columbia jail, located at 200 Nineteenth street, southeast, instead of the more distant work farm at Occoquan, Va., some 20 miles from the capital.

The city jail is more desirable than the work farm in some respects, and less desirable in others. Physically able prisoners sent to the farm are put to work—hard manual labor. There are cows to be milked, fields to be plowed, stables to be cleaned, and worse than all else, bricks to be

Mrs. A. W. Holman, who has been confined in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus for the past five weeks from injuries received in an automobile accident, returned home Sunday. She returned to Circleville in the machine with Dr. Holman and daughter, Miss Ruth Holman. Although Mrs. Holman has not completely recovered, she is greatly improved.

DRY OFFICIALS AND GOVERNOR GO IN HUDDLE

State Prohibition Commissioner Confers With Cooper In Secrecy.

Secrecy and silence predominated in Ohio's prohibition circles today.

All was quiet along the Lancaster "battleground," where it is charged, Ed Little, Dayton, and John O. Cole, Steubenville, suspended dry agents, used high school girls as decoys in obtaining evidence against alleged liquor law violators.

It was the same at Lorain, where, allegations state, Cole led a raiding party on the personage of Rev. George I. Cooper's Union Rescue Mission.

But things were somewhat different in Columbus. There was not only silence, but secrecy.

AT COOPER'S HOME

It is known that Gov. Meyers Y. Cooper, and several members of his cabinet, including State Prohibition Commissioner R. R. Beetham, are in a "huddle" at the chief executive's mansion at Columbus. The officials slipped quietly from their state-house offices this morning and congregated at the governor's home.

R. R. Beetham, when accosted by reporters, replied that he was not familiar enough with the situation as yet, to make any comment on the situations at Lancaster and Lorain.

He has ordered Prosecutor Russell Cunningham and several other Lancaster Ohio officials to appear before him tomorrow afternoon, in connection with the charges that high school girls were used as liquor decoys and that Little and Cole gave the girls intoxicants to drink.

TAKE OFFENSIVE

In taking this step, it is reported, the state prohibition department, which had remained on the defensive while Beetham was absent from Columbus, is taking the offensive, and the "attitude" that if the liquor laws had been properly enforced at Lancaster the "unpleasant situation" would not have occurred.

An expense account filed with the state auditor's office today showed that Fred E. Gray, another state prohibition agent, had expended $248 in his investigations of liquor condition during April at Ironton. Included in the items was $49 for "gambling and purchase of liquor." The budget was approved by State Commissioner Beetham and certified by the auditor of state. The account attracted a little attention because of the fact that it was the first time in several months that an expense account of a state dry agent had included a "gambling" item.

PICKAWAY BOY AND GIRL WIN PRIZES

In the announcement just sent out from the Farmers' Institute department, Ohio State university of those who won prizes in the poster contest, Pickaway-co has two representatives. Melvin Hawkins of Derby, Route 1, won the third prize of $10, and Laura Tener of Williamsport, also won a prize.

The poster contest is used as a means of getting the institute program before the community, and during the last year was supported very well throughout the state by the schools.

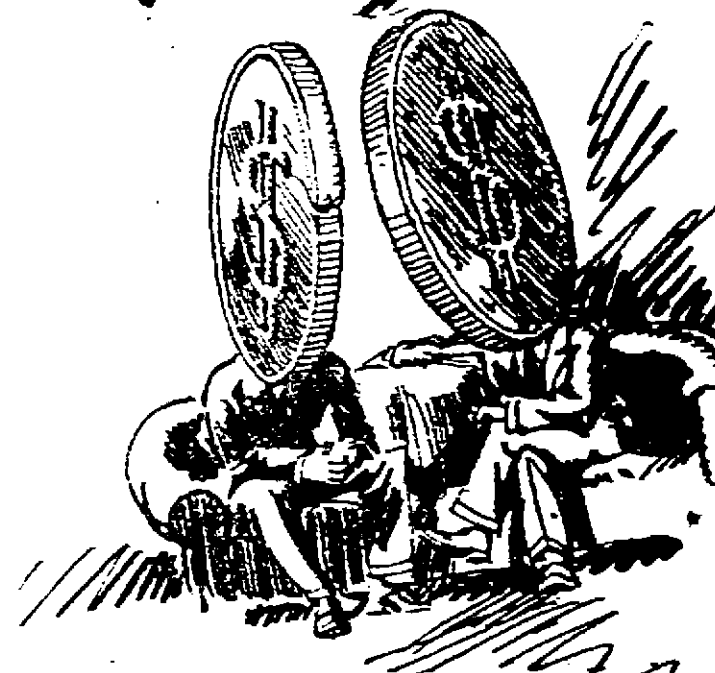

“Now son, I’ll tell you—”

FIRST of all, that running a successful household involves the application of the same business principles required in the management of any other well conducted going concern. Your salary represents the gross business—this, minus expenses, is the PROFIT of your ‘firm.’ Don’t let ‘expenses’ eat up your ‘profits.’

Both you and your partner, over there, can cut down your expenses by investigating the market before you do any buying. When we buy supplies down at the plant, Mr. Brown, the Purchasing Agent, acquaints himself with the market through his current catalogs—price lists, and various other reports, so that when we buy we buy RIGHT.

You can follow the same plan, read the various ads in your newspaper, they cover your market pretty thoroughly—Keep posted on your market, investigate before you buy and you’ll buy ‘RIGHT.’

RELIEVED PAINFUL LONG STANDING RHEUMATIC AFFLICTION

NEW MEDICINE SUCCEEDS IN RESTORING CHILLICOTHE MAN'S HEALTH AND VIGOR AFTER ALL OTHERS FAIL.

FEELS BETTER THAN HE HAS FOR YEARS.

Joyful news for sufferers from rheumatism is contained in the experience of Ed May, well-known Chillicothe man, who lives at 178 Bridge street. A long sufferer of this painful trouble, he now feels better than he has felt for years. Read what he voluntarily told the clerk at the Mykrantz Pharmacy, Paint and Second street, from whom he purchased Spinago, the tonic that contains Spinach. He found Spinago was not just another patent medicine.

ED. MAY.

"All day long my arms and hands pained me terribly. They were cold all the time and there was little circulation of blood, so that every bit of work I tried to do was almost impossible. For months and months I tried all kinds of remedies for rheumatism but my arms and hands remained cold and the pain was unrelieved. I tried the different things my friends recommended but no matter what I did I could not get away from those terrible rheumatic pains. They bothered me at night, so I could not sleep. I became nervous and my digestion was very poor. It just seemed I had to do something to stop the pain and to bring myself to a normal health again.

"A friend of mine who found Spinago helped him, told me about it.

"I decided to try it, not expecting it to do any good, but before I had finished taking the first bottle, my circulation improved and my arms and hands became warmer. The rheumatic pains began to disappear. I immediately came back and got two more bottles for Spinago was the first medicine to give me any relief.

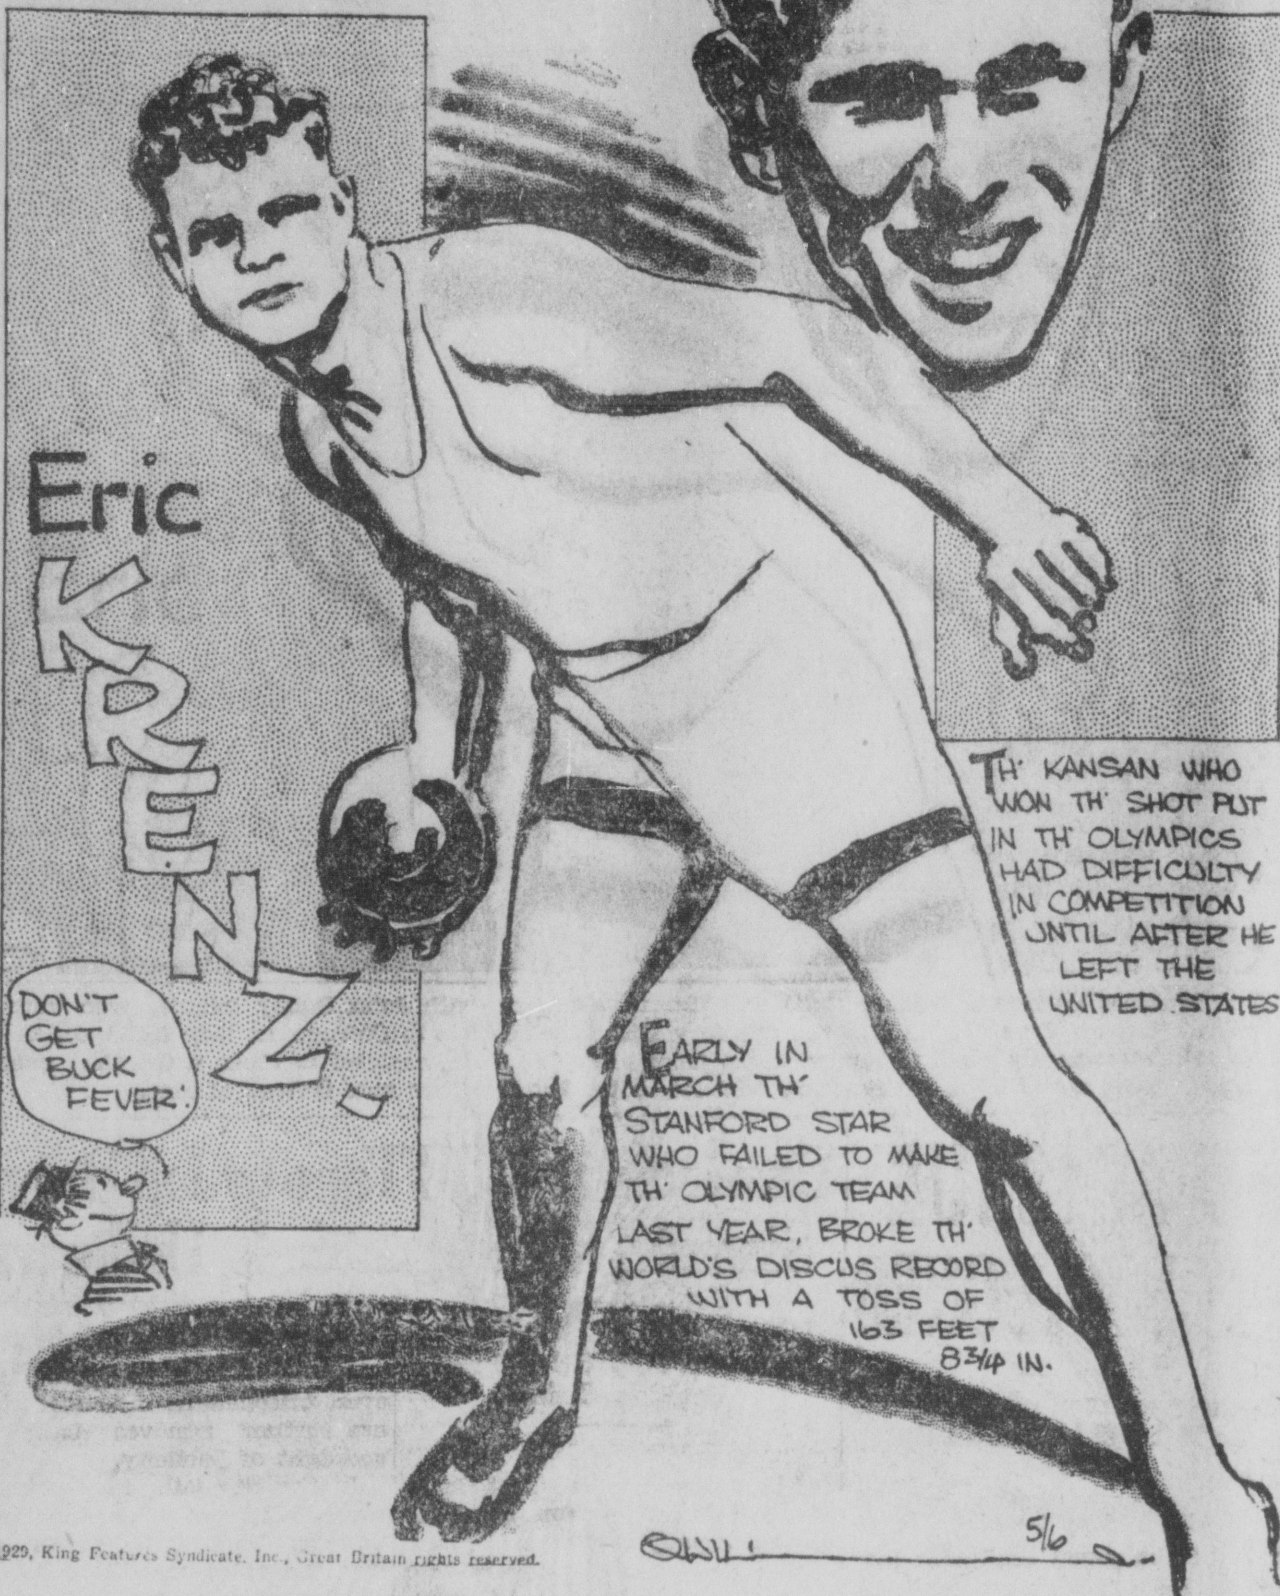

"I have taken three bottles and can truthfully say I have not felt so good for many years. I want everyone in Chillicothe to know what a wonderful medicine Spinago is. And through the newspaper I want them to add my recommendation to that of hundreds of others that Spinago means relief to those who suffer from rheumatism."

In Mr. May's case Spinago relieved his stubborn case of rheumatism. But in hundreds of other instances Spinago has worked a miracle by freeing sufferers from stomach, liver, bladder, bowel and kidney complaints; constipation, dyspepsia and indigestion are eliminated; and neuritis and nervousness relieved. Because of the concentrated spinach in Spinago this super-tonic rebuilds the body, drives away the tired, worn, frayed-out feeling. It builds pep and energy and gives you new life and vigor to do your daily work. The spinach concentrate builds fresh, red blood for your system, destroys poisons and impurities and gives you a wholesome, well-balanced body to go about your tasks. And best of all Spinago brings permanent relief because this master medicine, perfected after long, careful scientific research, quickly, quietly and effectively goes to the root of all these complaints and forever drives away the causes of suffering.

Come to the Mykrantz Pharmacy today and see for yourself how this marvelous new tonic will give you strength, health and energy.—Adv.

British Monarch's Title

James I wished to use the title of "King of Great Britain" instead of "King of England and Scotland," and even went so far as to have it placed on his coins. In 1604 he asked parliament to consent to the new title, but fears were expressed lest the laws and liberties of England might be jeopardized and the commons urged that some agreement as to the terms of union precede assumption of the title. James finally yielded to the advice of his minister, Robert Cecil, and the change was deferred. The title did not receive parliamentary sanction until the Act of Union, 1707.

TWO PITCHERS NEAR HITLESS GAME SUNDAY

Washington Rookie Hurler Allows Two Singles and Loses, 1 To 0.

NEW YORK, May 6.—No major league pitcher has delivered a no-hit game since Tex Lyons of the Chicago White Sox blanked the Red Sox on August 21, 1926, but two big league hurlers, a veteran and a rookie, made gallant attempts to turn the trick yesterday. Rube Walberg, elongated southpaw of the Athletics, held the St. Louis Browns to one hit, a single, and Ad Liska, rookie submarine pitcher who came to Washington from the American Association, limited Cleveland to two hits.

Walberg won his game, 2 to 0, snapping Sam Gray's winning streak of four games and enabling the Mackmen to shove the Browns out of first place, but Liska lost, Ealk's single and errors by Myers and Cronin gave the Indians a 1 to 0 verdict over the Senators. Miller hurled for Cleveland.

Another neat bit of twirling was contributed by Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn. The strike-out king held Cincinnati to four hits, winning 4 to 1. Glenn Wright, in his first complete league game as a Robin, walloped a homer and a single but did not have a chance to make a single play in the field.

RUTH GETS HOMER

Babe Ruth's fourth home run of the season featured the Yankees' 8 to 3 win over the White Sox Pippas, the New York pitcher, went the route for the first time this season.

The five-game winning streak of the Boston Braves curled up and died when Pittsburgh swamped the league leaders, 7 to 2, before 35,000 fans in Boston's first National league Sunday game. The Bucs pulled a triple play in the fourth. Spohrer forced Mueller at the plate and Sophrer and Maranville were nipped trying to take extra bases on the play.

The Cardinals again proved themselves better finishers than the Giants, converting apparent defeat into a 9 to 7 victory with a three-run rally in the ninth. Chick Hafey knocked in four runs with a homer, triple and single and Douthit came through with a timely home run for the second successive day.

Detroit knocked Ed Morris out of the box, rolled up 15 hits and buried the Red Sox under a 10 to 2 landslide.

TO DEVELOP A CORRECT PIVOT PRACTICE THIS EXERCISE EVERY NIGHT AND MORNING

EXERCISE TO DEVELOP PIVOT

If ONE wishes to learn the secret of good golf he should learn how to pivot. This means a good healthy exercise every night and morning. Stand before a mirror so you can watch the operation carefully. Place both hands on the hips. The feet are, of course, spread apart as in the golf stance.

Turn the body around so that the left elbow points directly out in front, then pivot completely around the other way so the right elbow is in front. Hold the stomach in. This is also very good for a reducer and will take off weight rapidly if anyone prolongs the exercise. (©, 1929, Bell Syndicate.)

British Monarch's Title

James I wished to use the title of "King of Great Britain" instead of "King of England and Scotland," and even went so far as to have it placed on his coins. In 1604 he asked parliament to consent to the new title, but fears were expressed lest the laws and liberties of England might be jeopardized and the commons urged that some agreement as to the terms of union precede assumption of the title. James finally yielded to the advice of his minister, Robert Cecil, and the change was deferred. The title did not receive parliamentary sanction until the Act of Union, 1707.

Her Idea

Little Mary, almost six years old, came home from kindergarten all thrilled, happily saying:
"I modeled in clay today, mother."
"Well, Mary," said mother, "what did you make?"
"Oh, I made the Statue of Liberty."
"Why, dear," said mother, "you never saw the Statue of Liberty."
"I know that," replied Mary. "I just made it anyway and put a pipe in his mouth."

Regiment's Wooden Sword

Whenever the Tenth Infantry of the United States army appears on parade either at its home station, Fort Thomas, Ky., or in Cincinnati, near by, or in noncommissioned officer always marches along carrying a wooden sword.

This sword was carved from a tree which stands at Devil's den, on the Gettysburg battlefield, where the forerunners of the present regiment took part in the decisive struggle. The sergeant who has served longest in this regiment is accorded the honor of carrying the sword.

TWO PITCHERS NEAR HITLESS GAME SUNDAY

Washington Rookie Hurler Allows Two Singles and Losses, 1 To 0.

NEW YORK, May 4.—No major league pitcher has delivered a no-hit game since Tex Lyons of the Chicago White Sox blanked the Red Sox on August 21, 1926, but two big league hurlers, a veteran and a rookie, made gallant attempts to turn the trick yesterday. Rube Walberg, elongated southpaw of the Athletics, held the St. Louis Browns to one hit, a single, and Ad Liska, rookie submarine pitcher who came to Washington from the American Association, limited Cleveland to two hits.

Walberg won his game, 2 to 0, snapping Sam Gray's winning streak of four games and enabling the Mackmen to shove the Browns out of first place, but Liska lost, Ealk's single and errors by Myers and Cronin gave the Indians a 1 to 0 verdict over the Senators. Miller hurried for Cleveland.

Another neat bit of twirling was contributed by Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn. The strike-out king held Cincinnati to four hits, winning 4 to 1. Glenn Wright, in his first complete league game as a Robin, walloped a homer and a single but did not have a chance to make a single play in the field.

RUTH GETS HOMER

Babe Ruth's fourth home run of the season featured the Yankees' 8 to 3 win over the White Sox. Pippas, the New York pitcher, went the route for the first time this season.

The five-game winning streak of the Boston Braves curled up and died when Pittsburgh swamped the league leaders, 7 to 2, before 35,000 fans in Boston's first National league Sunday game. The Bucs pulled a triple play in the fourth. Spohrer forced Mueller at Louis, 456.

the plate and Sophrer and Maraville were nipped trying to take extra bases on the play.

The Cardinals again proved themselves better finishers than the Giants, converting apparent defeat into a 9 to 7 victory with a three-run rally in the ninth. Chick Hafey knocked in four runs with a homer, triple and single and Douthit came through with a timely home run for the second successive day.

Detroit knocked Ed Morris out of the box, rolled up 15 hits and buried the Red Sox under a 10 to 2 landslide.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

TO DEVELOP A CORRECT PIVOT PRACTICE THIS EXERCISE EVERY NIGHT AND MORNING

EXERCISE TO DEVELOP PIVOT

IF ONE wishes to learn the secret of good golf he should learn how to pivot. This means a good healthy exercise every night and morning. Stand before a mirror so you can watch the operation carefully. Place both hands on the hips. The feet are, of course, spread apart as in the golf stance. Turn the body around so that the left elbow points directly out in front, then pivot completely around the other way so the right elbow is in front. Hold the stomach in. This is also very good for a reducer and will take off weight rapidly if anyone prolongs the exercise.

Development of Botany

Among the ancients Aristotle, the Greek philosopher (384-322 B. C.), and the Roman naturalist, Pliny the Elder (23 to 79 A. D.), left botanical records of historical interest. However, botany as a modern science has developed in the last four centuries, dating from the Reformation.

FIRST of all, that running a successful household involves the application of the same business principles required in the management of any other well conducted going concern. Your salary represents the gross business—this, minus expenses, is the PROFIT of your ‘firm.’ Don’t let ‘expenses’ eat up your ‘profits.’

Both you and your partner, over there, can cut down your expenses by investigating the market before you do any buying. When we buy supplies down at the plant, Mr. Brown, the Purchasing Agent, acquaints himself with the market through his current catalogs—price lists, and various other reports, so that when we buy we buy RIGHT.

You can follow the same plan, read the various ads in your newspaper, they cover your market pretty thoroughly—Keep posted on your market, investigate before you buy and you’ll buy ‘RIGHT.’

Dairyman, Sixty Five Years of Age, Adds His Praise To Powers of Konjola.

MR. JOHN F. PECKENS. "I didn't realize what a wonderful medicine Konjola was until I tried it," said Mr. John F. Peckens, Route No. 4, Ashtabula. "Konjola certainly surprised me. I was troubled by a weak stomach. My food did not digest. Gas formed, and at times there were severe pains. I also suffered from kidney troubles, and there was constant pain in the small of my back. Finally rheumatism took hold, and I suffered terribly. "A friend insisted that I try Konjola. To my surprise, my troubles began to leave me right from the start. The stomach troubles have disappeared, my kidneys act as they should, and the rheumatism has left me. My entire system has been cleansed of all poisons and impurities. I will never miss an opportunity to praise Konjola." Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Lindbergh Paints Picture of Aeronautics in America

Predicts Safe and Regular Air Passenger Service Within Year or Two

AMERICA'S airports, in order to properly serve the ultimate object of aviation, must be located within a few minutes of the center of the cities they are to serve, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh declared before a joint committee of Congress considering the selection of a municipal airport for the National Capital.

He emphasized strongly his feeling that America is sorely delinquent in the matter of airport development, and that this delinquency is hampering the progress of commercial air travel.

Airports should have concrete base and asphalt surface. Runways, should be carefully and evenly sodded, and should be equipped with every possible facility for passenger comfort, he explained.

Colonel Lindbergh painted a glowing picture of the future of aeronautics in America, pointing out that there is more private flying in this country at the present time than in all of Europe combined.

In connection with the location of airports, Colonel Lindbergh expressed the belief that proximity to the business section is the most important item to be taken into consideration.

"If the airport is an hour's ride from the city," he explained, "it takes away most of the advantage of flying time; on a trip from New York or Philadelphia to Washington, the time required going to and from distant landing fields would add so much to the flying time that there would be little advantage over the railroad time."

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH (International Newsreel)

"Would a distance of 20 minutes be much of a handicap?" he was asked.

"That's reasonable," he replied, "but it would be better if it were possible to have the field even closer."

Lindbergh predicted that in a year or two there will be safe, regular, direct passenger service between New York and Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires. He pointed out that even now there is regular service between Miami and Panama.

TWO BALLOONS STILL IN RACE

Ten of 12 Starters From Pittsburgh Saturday Have Been Grounded.

PITTSBURGH, May 6.—Two of the twelve balloons that took off here Saturday evening in the 1929 national elimination races were still in the air today, with possibilities of setting a new record, in their drift over New England.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A SUCCESS WORSE THAN FAILURE

Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and established a city by iniquity. —Habakkuk 2:12.

PRAYER—O God, Thou hast every unclean thing for Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity.

COLLECTING ALIMONY

Judge Gemmill of the Superior Court of Chicago, recently criticized the way in which many women attempt to collect alimony. According to his view, many of these women feel that all they have to do is to come into court and ask for money and they can collect from a man all the rest of his life.

The law providing alimony for wives in case of divorce or separation was probably appropriate to conditions when it was made, but it is claimed that in many cases it works unjustly now. It is said that many women will sue their husbands for divorce on very inadequate grounds, for the sole purpose of obtaining an adequate support. If a man's conduct has not been strictly ethical, he may give up the money without much protest, when his wife is perhaps no better than he is.

In former days when women did not commonly have any occupation by which they could earn a living outside of their own homes, and when most of them had children, a reason existed in the great majority of cases why a man should pay alimony in cases of divorce. But today when many married couples have no children and when the majority of women can resume after a divorce the occupations by which they formerly earned a living, the justice of the claim for alimony is not always so clear.

Where a wife is left with children to be supported, the fairness of the payment of alimony is usually obvious. The justice of such payments depend a great deal on which party is the more responsible for the unfortunate marriage and separation. Women who entrap men by their bewitching and designing ways, and with mercenary motives, and without any loyal affection, and then quit them after a few years, are not usually in any position to make a just claim for support. If they are tired of their bargain, they should commonly depend upon their own independent resources.

TALK AND ACTION

The difference between a progressive and unprogressive community, is not commonly one of intelligence. The intelligent community is sometimes less progressive than one with less learning but more ambition. An intelligent community may talk and talk about needed improvements, yet have no one with the initiative to take hold and lead the way to accomplishing the same.

The go ahead town does not waste time in endless talk about a desirable improvement. If the project is not practical, it sets it aside, and does not consume time talking about it. But if the plan is possible and practical, it takes hold of it with determination, and gets it out of the way, and reaps the benefit. Communities that talk about improvements, and rarely or never put them through, are afflicted with a civic paralysis that will keep them stationary.

WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

CHAPTER LXXXIII.
SHE mustn't let Guinn be harassed by callers now—and Abby was an emotional vampire.

"Come on, Abby," said Miss Mattie, rising nimbly, as she read Irene's mind.

But Abby merely gave her a malignant look and kept her seat. Her long, slanting black eyes flashed fire, and her olive skin flushed under its cerise rouge, while her high blue-silk bosom heaved.

"To lose the darling of your heart," she quavered to Guinn. "Yes, she was—very dear," he said in a dull, toneless voice, as if he were not conscious of hearing or of speaking.

"The only one of whom you could feel sure!"

He looked a trifle bewildered. "She had her own place in my heart—yes, but I have other children, too," he said in a weary voice.

"Oh, yes?" her oblique glance implied that she felt much she dared not express.

But he was too engrossed in his grief to notice her modulations or expressions.

Irene rose. "Let's go into the living room," she said, her glance including Miss Mattie and Abby. Miss Mattie again sprang nimbly to her feet.

But Abby remained seated, with a contemptuous air. "Of course, I understand. You want to cheat aim out of any real sympathy?"

"I think not," was Irene's controlled answer.

Abby turned again to Guinn. "Oh, pastor, to think that in this hour you have no one on whom you can lean, no one you can trust. Only those who have been false to you for so long!"

Guinn stirred to surprised awareness of her, at last. "Eh, what?" he questioned, turning heavy-lidded eyes upon her. She leaned nearer, brushed his shoulder with her own, and her ringed hand, white, unwholesome, as the underpart of a toad, leaped on his hand. "Oh, you poor blind innocent!"

Will Lundy rose to his feet and cleared his throat. "I think it would be better not to talk to him just now. He needs to rest and be quiet. Suppose you women all go into the living room and I'll give Guinn something to let him sleep awhile."

He gave his confident gesture of command, motioning them to the door, his coppery head, his ruddy skin looking more than ever alive and vivid in that sad room.

She gave a laugh of derision. "Of course, I realize you want to keep his friends from telling him the truth. But I can't stand to see him made a fool of in this hour."

Miss Mattie stepped closer to her. "Abby, are you cracked? Come on out of here and let this poor man rest!"

Abby shrugged her shoulders in contempt. "You're in the conspiracy, too. You were left to blindfold him while—"

"Just what are you talking about?" asked Guinn. He had the bewildered half-wild look of one coming out from under an anesthetic.

Will stepped forward. "Guinn, don't try to talk now. Come on up to your room and lie down."

Abby shrieked. "You see... how they choke me off? Because they know I care enough about you to tell you the truth!"

"What truth?" rasped Guinn. She pointed a finger like a long white grub. "Look at 'em... see how guilty they look. Those two that pretend to love you—and lie to you—and play you false behind your back! The man you call your best friend... and this precious wife of yours!"

Irene felt strangled, as if that white, repulsive hand were at her throat.

Guinn started up from his chair. "No!" he burst out, roused at last. Abby laughed stridently. "Yes! Don't he even go about bragging that two of the children are his? Isn't he even supporting his namesake in college... and now going to send his girl, as he calls her, to New York?"

Will Lundy threw back his coppery head in a burst of laughter that sounded queer in the silent house. "Well, for the Lord's sake!"

Guinn eased himself down in his chair. "Why should you try to distress me with absurdities—in such an hour? Doesn't it mean anything to you that my child lies dead upstairs?" he asked her.

"Listen." She leaned toward him and laid her hand on his again. He drew his away quickly. "Listen. If you don't believe I'm telling you the straight of it—just look 'em in the eye and ask 'em for the truth about that trip to New York."

"That's enough!" he cried, springing to his feet again. "You can't speak evil to me of my wife!"

"Oh, so she's got you utterly fooled, has she? Goes to the city with her lover—uses your innocent daughter, that angel that's lying dead upstairs now, as a tool. Maybe you think I didn't find out all about what happened there! You don't believe me, eh?"

He thrust out his hand with a gesture that spurned her. "If an archangel from heaven told me my wife was base, I'd pity him for his mistake!"

"You wouldn't believe the letters I wrote you about it long ago?"

"What letters?"

She whirled toward Irene. "So you intercepted them, did you?" Irene faced her with steady scorn. "I did."

THEATERS

"STORMY WATERS"

Eve Southern and Malcolm McGregor are starred at the Grand theater tonight in "Stormy Waters," a thrilling sea story adapted from one of Jack London's famous books in which a young shopman finds a girl in a South American dive and feels it his duty to save her. Universal comedy and Fox news also will be shown.

"INTERFERENCE SPLENDID"

A most remarkable performance was unrolled at the Cliftona theatre Sunday with the opening of "Interference," a Paramount picture featuring four film favorites, Clive Brook, Evelyn Brent, William Powell, and Doris Kenyon.

"Interference" is aptly termed "a melodrama of the upperworld." It is gripping and thrilling throughout.

It concerns a ruse who comes back from the dead and is discovered by an old fiancée. She pleads to be taken back, but it seems that the man for once in his life is really in love with his wife whom he married before going away to war, where he was reported killed in action. His wife since had re-married.

His cast-off love jealously seeks revenge by blackmailing the wife—now the wife of an eminent surgeon. Powell goes to the surgeon, where he discovers his wife and that she is supremely happy. After being told that he is suffering from an incurable heart ailment he resolves to make amends by retrieving some letters with which the wife is threatened by the jealous one. He does it in a most unusual way. The surgeon, because of events that follow comes under the suspicion of the police.

It is a remarkable plot, with remarkable characterizations by the four main characters. William Powell is the ruse, Evelyn Brent the revenging one, Doris Kenyon the harassed wife, and Clive Brook the surgeon.

Simple Way to Handle Child's Fear of Dark

If your child develops a fear of the dark, do you know how to handle it? It is possible to cure him in a very simple way. When you put him to bed tonight, leave the door partly open and a dim light burning in the hall. The child will go to sleep. Then dim the light a little every night. If you work patiently, four or five nights will enable you to recondition the child so that the door can be closed and the light turned out. If you do not control the child in this patient way, you may, by shouting at him or spanking, keep him from whimpering out loud when you put him to bed in the dark, but he will lie in bed trembling with fear. This is not your aim. Your real purpose should be to remove the fear, to recondition the child.—Children, the Magazine for Parents.

Explaining Death Valley

The climate of Death valley, Calif., is due in a measure to its configuration. It consists of a long, narrow valley, considerably below sea level. The Panamint mountains shut out from it the moist winds of the Pacific so that in August there is less than one-half of one per cent of moisture in the atmosphere.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A SUCCESS WORSE THAN FAILURE—Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and established a city by iniquity. —Habakkuk 2:12.

PRAYER—O God, Thou hast every unclean thing for Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity.

COLLECTING ALIMONY

Judge Gemmill of the Superior Court of Chicago, recently criticized the way in which many women attempt to collect alimony. According to his view, many of these women feel that all they have to do is to come into court and ask for money and they can collect from a man all the rest of his life.

The law providing alimony for wives in case of divorce or separation was probably appropriate to conditions when it was made, but it is claimed that in many cases it works unjustly now. It is said that many women will sue their husbands for divorce on very inadequate grounds, for the sole purpose of obtaining an adequate support. If a man's conduct has not been strictly ethical, he may give up the money without much protest, when his wife is perhaps no better than he is.

In former days when women did not commonly have any occupation by which they could earn a living outside of their own homes, and when most of them had children, a reason existed in the great majority of cases why a man should pay alimony in cases of divorce. But today when many married couples have no children and when the majority of women can resume after a divorce the occupations by which they formerly earned a living, the justice of the claim for alimony is not always so clear.

Where a wife is left with children to be supported, the fairness of the payment of alimony is usually obvious. The justice of such payments depend a great deal on which party is the more responsible for the unfortunate marriage and separation. Women who entrap men by their bewitching and designing ways, and with mercenary motives, and without any loyal affection, and then quit them after a few years, are not usually in any position to make a just claim for support. If they are tired of their bargain, they should commonly depend upon their own independent resources.

TALK AND ACTION

The difference between a progressive and unprogressive community, is not commonly one of intelligence. The intelligent community is sometimes less progressive than one with less learning but more ambition. An intelligent community may talk and talk about needed improvements, yet have no one with the initiative to take hold and lead the way to accomplishing the same.

The go ahead town does not waste time in endless talk about a desirable improvement. If the project is not practical, it sets it aside, and does not consume time talking about it. But if the plan is possible and practical, it takes hold of it with determination, and gets it out of the way, and reaps the benefit. Communities that talk about improvements, and rarely or never put them through, are afflicted with a civic paralysis that will keep them stationary.

WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

CHAPTER LXXXIII.
SHE mustn't let Guinn be harassed by callers now—and Abby was an emotional vamp.

"Come on, Abby," said Miss Mattie, rising nimbly, as she read Irene's mind.

But Abby merely gave her a malignant look and kept her seat. Her long, slanting black eyes flashed fire, and her olive skin flushed under its cerise rouge, while her high blue-silk bosom heaved.

"To lose the darling of your heart!" she quavered to Guinn. "Yes, she was—very dear," he said in a dull, toneless voice, as if he were not conscious of hearing or of speaking.

"The only one of whom you could feel sure!"

He looked a trifle bewildered. "She had her own place in my heart—yes. But I have other children, too," he said in a weary voice.

"Oh, yes?" her oblique glance implied that she felt much she dared not express.

By he was too engrossed in his grief to notice her modulations or expressions.

Irene rose. "Let's go into the living room," she said, her glance including Miss Mattie and Abby. Miss Mattie again sprang nimbly to her feet.

"FEEL BETTER THAN I HAVE IN LONG TIME"

Dairyman, Sixty Five Years of Age, Adds His Praise To Powers of Konjola.

MR. JOHN F. PECKENS.
"I didn't realize what a wonderful medicine Konjola was until I tried it," said Mr. John F. Peckens, Route No. 4, Ashtabula.
"Konjola certainly surprised me. I was troubled by a weak stomach. My food did not digest. Gas formed, and at times there were severe pains. I also suffered from kidney troubles, and there was constant pain in the small of my back. Finally rheumatism took hold, and I suffered terribly. A friend insisted that I try Konjola. To my surprise, my troubles began to leave me right from the start. The stomach troubles have disappeared, my kidneys act as they should, and the rheumatism has left me. My entire system has been cleansed of all poisons and impurities. I will never miss an opportunity to praise Konjola."
Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Lindbergh Paints Picture of Aeronautics in America

Predicts Safe and Regular Air Passenger Service Within Year or Two

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH (International Newsreel)

AMERICA'S airports, in order to properly serve the ultimate object of aviation, must be located within a few minutes of the center of the cities they are to serve, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh declared before a joint committee of Congress considering the selection of a municipal airport for the National Capital.

He emphasized strongly his feeling that America is sorely delinquent in the matter of airport development, and that this delinquency is hampering the progress of commercial air travel.

Airports should have concrete base and asphalt surface. runways, should be carefully and evenly sodded, and should be equipped with every possible facility for passenger comfort, he explained.

Colonel Lindbergh painted a glowing picture of the future of aeronautics in America, pointing out that there is more private flying in this country at the present time than in all of Europe combined.

In connection with the location of airports, Colonel Lindbergh expressed the belief that proximity to the business section is the most important item to be taken into consideration.

"If the airport is an hour's ride from the city," he explained, "it takes away most of the advantage of flying time; on a trip from New York or Philadelphia to Washington, the time required going to and from distant landing fields would add so much to the flying time that there would be little advantage over the railroad time."

"Would a distance of 20 minutes be much of a handicap?" he was asked.

"That's reasonable," he replied, "but it would be better if it were possible to have the field even closer."

Lindbergh predicted that in a year or two there will be safe, regular, direct passenger service between New York and Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires. He pointed out that even now there is regular service between Miami and Panama.

Mystic Power of the Moon Reflected in June's Gems

By PAULINE

"Long life and luck are promised you And many another precious boon By both the Moonstone and the Pearl, Were you born in the month of June."

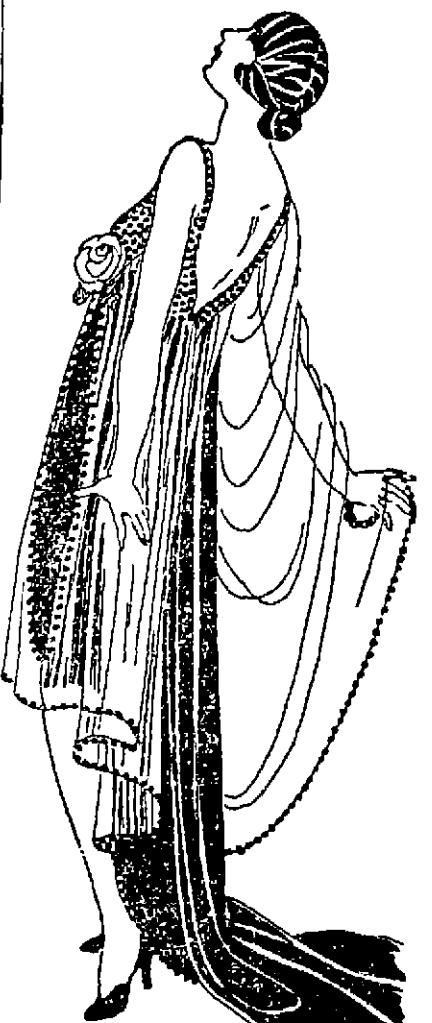

JUNE is fortunate in having two natal gems, the pearl and the moonstone, both of which, according to early astrologers, come under the planetary influence of the Moon, and hence possess powerful psychic vibrations.

It was held that when these gems were worn by right of birth they had a profound effect upon the intuitive faculties of the wearers, so that they could not only sense the thoughts of others but actually envision events in the future. They were also believed to stimulate creative ability, being particularly favorable to the work of writers and composers.

The Orient pearl, which is formed by a substance secreted by a patient little bivalve living chiefly in the waters along the coast of Ceylon, has been cherished for its beauty and rarity by the people of all ages. The early Egyptians and Hebrews gave it first place among precious gems, the Chinese valued it equally with their beloved jade; the Greeks set pearls in the ears of their marble goddesses and the Christians gave their choice pearls for the glorification of their altars. And when the Spanish first reached this country they found the Indian natives wearing pearls and setting them in their ornaments of religious worship.

Incidentally, it is chiefly to the pearl that Americans owe the discovery of this continent, since it was to find a Northwest passage to India and its great treasure chest of pearls that Columbus planned his voyage. Although always valued chiefly for its beauty the pearl also held an important place in the medical pharmacopoeia of the past. Pearls distilled in water are still used in the relief of stomach ailments in China, and at one time they were given in this form to the insane in order to restore their reason—probably through the belief in the "pearl's" connection with the Moon.

which was commonly held responsible for lunacy. As for the Moonstone, it was long thought that this stone contained an image of the Moon, which grew mysteriously from a mere spot to a full circle with the waxing and waning of that luminary. Because of this characteristic, testified to by many, including Pliny, the moonstone is a sacred stone in India, never displayed for sale except on a yellow cloth, the color yellow likewise being deemed sacred.

Like the Moon, the Moonstone is also supposed to be very powerful in arousing the tender passion, so that at one time it was the most popular of all love charms. It was said that lovers could foretell the fortune of their love by this stone. If it were placed in the mouth and the subject concentrated upon when the moon was full.

Washes woollens and blankets!

When you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woollens and blankets in that water.

Softens the water with Melo. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. Melo did that. Get a can today at your grocer's.

There will be no flags flying tonight at the Memorial hall, but the proceeds of the American Legion card party and dance, will be used for the benefit of those disabled soldiers at Camp Sherman who once carried the American flag to victory—and at the cost of their health and minds. It was not difficult to get help for these men, when the spirit of war was still strong, but now when they need help worst of all, it is so easy to neglect them. So don't forget the dance tonight at the Memorial hall, where everyone will gather for a good time.

ESCAPE WITH LIVES

COLUMBUS, O., May 6.—Herman Outland, his wife and a four-year-old daughter, are alive today—which wouldn't be news, except for the fact that they had a miraculous escape from death yesterday when their auto was struck by a Big Four yard engine at a crossing here, was 200 yards down the track and then thrown upside down into a ditch. The trio suffered only slight injuries. The car was demolished.

Mystic Power of the Moon Reflected in June's Gems

By PAULINE

"Long life and luck are promised you And many another precious boon. By both the Moonstone and the Pearl, Were you born in the month of June."

JUNE is fortunate in having two natal gems, the pearl and the moonstone, both of which, according to early astrologers, come under the planetary influence of the Moon, and hence possess powerful psychic vibrations.

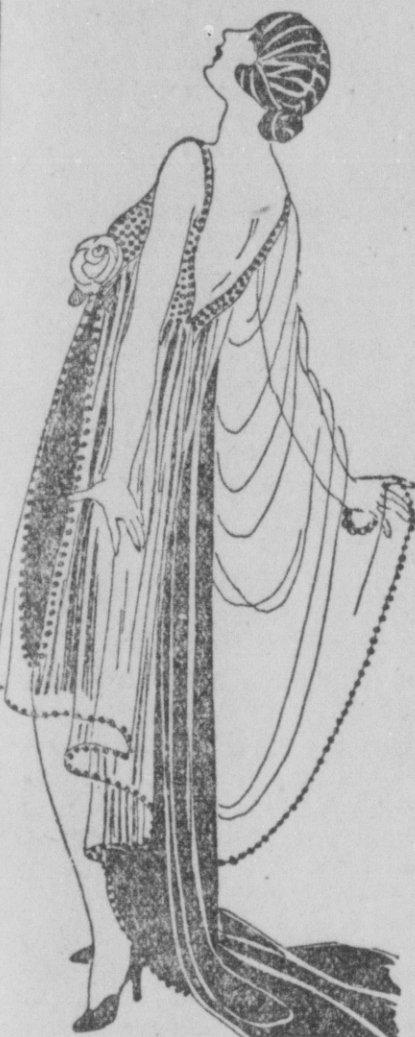

It was held that when these gems were worn by right of birth they had a profound effect upon the intuitive faculties of the wearers, so that they could not only sense the thoughts of others but actually envision events in the future. They were also believed to stimulate creative ability, being particularly favorable to the work of writers and composers.

The Orient pearl, which is formed by a substance secreted by a patient little bivalve living chiefly in the waters along the coast of Ceylon, has been cherished for its beauty and rarity by the people of all ages. The early Egyptians and Hebrews gave it first place among precious gems; the Chinese valued it equally with their beloved Jade; the Greeks set pearls in the ears of their marble goddesses, and the Christians gave their choice pearls for the glorification of their altars. And when the Spanish first reached this country they found the Indian natives wearing pearls and setting them in their ornaments of religious worship.

Incidentally, it is chiefly to the pearl that Americans owe the discovery of this continent, since it was to find a Northwest passage to India and its great treasure chest of pearls that Columbus planned his voyage.

Although always valued chiefly for its beauty, the pearl also held an important place in the medical pharmacopeia of the past. Pearls distilled in water are still used in the relief of stomach ailments in China, and at one time they were given in this form to the insane in order to restore their reason—probably through the belief in the pearl's connection with the Moon.

which was commonly held responsible for lunacy. As for the Moonstone, it was long thought that this stone contained an image of the Moon, which grew mysteriously from a mere spot to a full circle with the waxing and waning of that luminary. Because of this characteristic, testified to by many, including Pliny, the moonstone is a sacred stone in India, never displayed for sale except on a yellow cloth, the color yellow likewise being deemed sacred.

Like the Moon, the Moonstone is also supposed to be very powerful in arousing the tender passion, so that at one time it was the most popular of all love charms. It was said that lovers could foretell the fortune of their love by this stone. If it were placed in the mouth and the subject concentrated upon when the moon was full.

—are there any bottles aboard. No Alphonso, we are referring to milk bottles only.

We deliver your milk in glass bottles, we do not always get these bottles back the next day. That means we must buy new ones—and we can't make money doing that.

It is anticipated that a certain number of bottles will be lost or broken each day. We make allowances for that, but when hundreds do not retain it looks like some one is careless.

Those bottles belong to us. We only loan them to you and would like most of them returned. Bottles constitute our greatest overhead and under the present conditions it is scratch tooth and nail to make ends meet.

You want your milk. Please make an effort to assist us in serving you.
